

COMPUTER SIMULATIONS

This patented technology generally relates to providing computer simulations of complex systems. This technology allows a user to iteratively simulate complex systems using function modules having input variables and output variables.