

DATA ENCRYPTION

This patented technology generally relates to the use of an operating system to transparently create an encrypted file storage subsystem to fully secure user files from access by anyone other than the user.