

EMBEDDED BROADCAST DATA

This patented technology generally relates to embedding auxiliary display data in a TV broadcast signal. It enables the transmission of data using the RF carrier signal for subsequent display on a television. This technology may be used in commercial TV systems where enhanced display data is desired without having to encode it as part of the video stream.