

RELATIONAL DATABASE ACCESS

This patented technology generally relates to the use of SQL queries to manipulate 3GL application data. This technology enables the use of SQL relational database query language to access non-relational data files produced by applications written in a third-generation general purpose programming language, such as c, C++, or Cobol.