

TELEVISION DATA DISPLAY

This patented technology generally relates to a device for extracting data from a TV signal for display to a viewer. Similar to how closed caption data is handled, this technology can be used to extract data such as weather reports, sports scores, and news feeds, and display this data to the television viewer. This technology also provides for the data to be stored and retrieved at a later time by the television viewer.